

New System of Taxing Nation's Corporations About Ready For Action

Exact Details Are Withheld, But Tentative Agreement is Reported on Question of Taxing Undistributed Earnings.

NEW PROPOSAL

Graduated Normal Tax on Corporate Income, Levy Ranging From 8 to 15 Per Cent.

Washington, June 18 (AP)—A far-reaching new system of taxation on the nation's corporations and dividends was declared almost ready for final congressional action today after weeks of nerve-straining debate and conferences.

Exact details were withheld pending a final drawing up of a compromise in a Senate-House conference, but it was revealed that the conferees had tentatively agreed on the most controversial angle of the proposed Revenue Bill.

This was the question of taxing undistributed earnings of corporations. The tentative agreement, reached in a session late last night, was hailed as the end of the long deadlock between legislators of the two houses, which had passed markedly different bills in response to President Roosevelt's demand for tax legislation.

Chairman Doughton (D-NC) of the House conferees expressed confidence that by tonight "we shall be able to turn the bill over to the drafting service." After it is drawn, it must be ratified by both chambers. Although none of the legislators would make public data on the agreement, it was known that it was reached after discussion of a new compromise proposal including:

A graduated normal tax on corporate income, the levy ranging from 8 to 15 per cent.

A levy ranging from 6 or 7 per cent to 27 per cent on undistributed corporate income.

It was revealed definitely by conferees that the House delegation had yielded to the Senate and had agreed to impose a normal tax on net corporate income. Previously, the House had called for repeal of the present normal tax, now ranging from 12 1/2 to 15 per cent, and the substitution of a new graduated levy on net income, ranging up to 42 1/2 per cent and depending on the percentage of income withheld from distribution to stockholders.

The Senate had voted only a 7 per cent tax on undistributed profits, while calling for a normal levy of 15 1/2 to 18 per cent on net corporate income.

The latest compromise made public, with its graduated tax of 6 or 7 per cent to 27 per cent on undistributed profits, was closer to the House bill than most recent compromise proposals. It also would retain considerable of the Roosevelt administration's tax philosophy, which holds that undistributed profits should be taxed stiffly enough to force a larger distribution to stockholders, who would then pay normal individual income taxes, as well as surtaxes. At present, dividends are exempt from normal taxes.

The compromise laid before the conferees for discussion last night would lay a comparatively light tax on small corporations which distribute their earnings, but would impose much stiffer levies on big concerns retaining their income.

The normal tax on net corporate income would be graduated as follows:

5 per cent on the first $2,000.
11 per cent on the next $13,000.
13 per cent on the next $25,000.
15 per cent on all over $40,000.

On this would be superimposed a graduated tax on undistributed income running as follows:

6 or 7 per cent (still undetermined) on the first 10 per cent.
12 per cent on the next 10 per cent.
17 per cent on the next 20 per cent.
22 per cent on the next 20 per cent.
27 per cent on all over 60 per cent.

Tuesday Was Greater Success

New York, June 18 (AP)—George Tunney, former heavyweight champion of the world, was more interested today in the "weighing-in" of his third son than he was in the Louis-Schmeling fight. The baby, who weighed eight pounds, was born yesterday to Mrs. Tunney, the former Mary Josephine Lander, at the Manhattan Pavilion of the New York Medical Center. At his birth Tunney left word that the baby was in a good humor and that Mrs. Tunney was "feeling fine."

Edward J. Luedtke Struck by Lightning Delivering Mail Here

Letter Carrier Edward J. Luedtke of Staples street is in the Kingston Hospital with injuries sustained when struck by a bolt of lightning this noon. As far as could be ascertained Mr. Luedtke was directly in front of the residence of A. E. Rose on Maiden Lane when a bolt of lightning struck the umbrella he was carrying.

Mr. Luedtke's arm was badly shocked by the lightning bolt. Word was telephoned to the Central Post Office and John Purvis from the office jumped into an auto and hurried to the scene and removed Mr. Luedtke to the hospital.

Mr. Luedtke is one of the most popular and active members of Kingston Post of the American Legion. He was one of the prime movers in effecting the organization of the Legion File and Drum Corps of which he is an active member. Mr. Luedtke also organized, trained and drilled the Port Ewen fire department file and drum corps. At the time he was struck he was carrying his mail route.

At the hospital it was stated that Mr. Luedtke's arm responded to treatment and he was able to leave the hospital shortly after 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Schmeling-Louis Bout Postponed by Rain Until Friday Night

New York, June 18 (AP)—Rain today forced postponement of Joe Louis' 15 round heavyweight bout with Max Schmeling at the Yankee Stadium until tomorrow night.

Jacobs said that in the event of further rain tomorrow he would try to hold the fight Saturday, possibly in the afternoon if that can be arranged.

Louis outweighed Schmeling by six pounds today as weighing-in ceremonies were held at the Hippodrome for their 15 round bout scheduled for the Yankee Stadium tonight. Louis weighed 138 pounds; Schmeling 132.

Louis' handlers reported the boxer had played his harmonica during the first 10 minutes of his training and then had slept the rest of the way. Schmeling appeared somewhat nervous during weighing-in ceremonies but Louis was as unshakable as ever.

New York, June 18 (AP)—The Republican party's campaign strategy in the crucial eastern states was mapped today as John D. M. Hamilton, national chairman, conferred with state leaders.

"We're going to carry the East," Hamilton predicted. "I think Roosevelt ought to carry six of the 48 states. I'll be rather generous about that."

The Republican chairman, arriving last night by plane, indicated he would give special attention to swinging New York's 47 electoral votes into the Republican column.

Details of the organization were first on his program as he prepared to inspect the offices tentatively chosen as Republican state and national headquarters in New York.

He was expected also to discuss campaign finances with party leaders.

In response to a question concerning the man the Landon forces would choose to direct the campaign in New York, Hamilton said:

"I suppose the state chairman in New York will be in charge."

The state chairman is Melvin C. Eaton, whose name had been mentioned with Clarence R. King of Syracuse and J. Russell Sprague of Nassau county as the possible director of the Landon-Knox campaign in this state.

Hamilton said the party's outlook in the West had brightened since the Cleveland convention.

"The country out there is on fire," he said. "You haven't seen anything like the middle west."

"We're going to carry the mountain states and two at least on the coast, if not all three."

He said there was "no question" about Republican success in New York and New Jersey.

Hamilton declined to comment on the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin's announcement of the formation of a third party.

"I'll not comment upon the possibility of a third party until it has become a fact," he said.

Hamilton said he planned to call on Miss Natalie Couch, a member of the executive committee of the Republican state committee, to ask her to head the women's division in New York.

Roosevelt by Acclamation

Washington, June 18 (AP)—A prediction that the Democrats would break a precedent of 48 years' standing by renominating President Roosevelt by acclamation took its place today beside a Republican forecast that the Landon ticket would win overwhelmingly in November.

Representative Cannon (D., Mo.), Democratic convention parliamentarian for the past 15 years, expressed the belief that the convention next week at Philadelphia would name Mr. Roosevelt without the formality of a ballot—the first man so honored since Grover Cleveland in 1888.

Cannon said he had confidence the following will be the procedure when the convention reaches the point of nominations:

Call of the roll by states with 30 minutes allotted for each nomination speech.

Motion to suspend the rules for acclamation.

Call of roll by states for vice presidential nomination with five minutes allotted for speeches.

Motion to suspend the rules for acclamation.

The prediction of a sweeping Republican victory came from John D. M. Hamilton, national chairman and campaign manager for Governor Alf M. Landon.

Arriving in New York for conferences on party finances, he said Democratic Chairman James A. Farley will have to do some picking to name six states that the Democrats will carry.

European Strikes Gain Preliminary Hearing On As Authorities Employ Wawarsing Rate Case Before Commissioners

French Situation Cripples American Hospital, and Government Refuses Laidor Straus Plea for Police Action.

SPANISH TROUBLE

In Barcelona 100,000 Store Employees Walk Out; Liege Fortified Against Belgian Strikers.

(By The Associated Press.)

A fresh French strike crippled an American Hospital today while Belgian strikers flouted the warning of machine gun emplacements on the streets of Liege.

Prison riots and new strikes, including the walkout of 100,000 store employees in Barcelona, gripped Spain.

The French government declined the American ambassador's plea for police evacuation of striking workers at the hospital in Neuilly-Sur-Seine, where there are many Americans among the 85 patients. Hospital officials said it was feared forced evacuation might cause serious disorder.

In fortified Liege, police planted the machine guns on street corners but the strikers fired a bridge, halted autobuses and poured cement in mail boxes.

Refuses Request.

Paris, June 18 (AP)—The French government today refused a personal request by the United States Ambassador Jesse Laird Straus for police action against strikers at the American Hospital.

Ambassador Straus asked that police evacuate striking assistants, scrubwomen and other employees from the hospital at Neuilly-Sur-Seine, declaring an occupational strike at the institution could not be tolerated.

The strike was regarded as endangering the care of 85 patients, most of them Americans, and 23 of whom are in a serious condition. The strikers demanded shorter hours.

Hospital officials said the ambassador's request was refused on the grounds that police action might "cause trouble which might be serious."

At the same time the French cabinet decreed the dissolution of four Rightist Leagues in an effort to break up "combat groups and private militias."

The action of the government was directed especially against the Croix De Feu, nationalist organization originated by World War veterans and commanded by Col. Francois De La Rocque.

Announces Dissolution.

A Croix De Feu official immediately announced the dissolution might "drive the Leagues under cover where they would become a real menace."

The other Leagues disbanded were the League for French Solidarity, the Young Patriots and the Blue Shirt Franciscans.

The cabinet also approved bills for "the defense of the franc," the reorganization of the Bank of France, and the creation of a wheat board to fix a minimum price for wheat.

The bills were sent to the Chamber of Deputies for immediate introduction.

In regard to the United States ambassador's request, authorities did, however, offer to send health ministry representatives to arbitrate the walkout after Dr. Edmund L. Gros, president of the hospital, said he could not guarantee necessary care for the patients.

A general confederation of labor delegates went to the hospital to discuss the workers' demands after a conference with Roger Salengro, minister of the interior.

At the institution, resident physicians took over the strikers' duties, scrubbing floors, polishing brass and cleaning patients' rooms.

Nurses, most of whom remained on duty, began cooking meals. Some of the strikers who occupied the garage, sent word to the hospital to send meals out to them.

A session of the board of governors of the institution was called to decide whether it will be necessary to close the hospital.

The French senate, meanwhile, passed the government's bill 279 to 6, to allow workers to bargain collectively.

Supervisor McDowell, of Wawarsing, and Attorney Lounsberry appear for town, Elsworth argues case for county.

15 SCHEDULES

Mr. Lounsberry Has Filed to Date 15 out of 21 Schedules to be Filed.

A preliminary hearing was held this morning before Commissioners Hennessy and Spratt of the State Tax Commission in the matter of the review of the equalization rate for the town of Wawarsing.

Supervisor Tuthill McDowell of Wawarsing, appellant, and LeRoy Lounsberry attorney for the town appeared. County Attorney Roscoe V. Elsworth appeared for the county with Clerk of the Board Fred Stang. William P. Glase is stenographer for the hearing.

At the prior hearing it was agreed on the number of parcels in each tax district to be selected and included in the schedules to be filed with the commission. To date Mr. Lounsberry for the appellant has filed 15 schedules out of the 21 to be filed. Each schedule represents a town of the county and the parcels on each schedule are considered representative of the entire town.

At the hearing this morning schedules were filed for three additional towns, Gardner, New Paltz and Rosendale, leaving now but three to be supplied to the commission. The three remaining schedules for the appellant are in the towns of Hurley, Saugerties and Woodstock. Mr. Lounsberry said the parcels in these three remaining towns had been selected but they had not yet been placed on the form necessary for submission to the commission.

County Attorney Elsworth stated that he had not filed any of his schedules yet with the commission as he did not know whether the commission desired them filed piecemeal or held until the complete schedule was ready. He said he would have his complete schedule ready for submission in ten days or two weeks and asked that an adjournment be taken of such time as to permit both sides to complete their schedules.

Commissioner Hennessy complimented both attorneys for the work already done and said that the task of making the selection of parcels was a large one, perhaps larger than had been anticipated by counsel. Both attorneys agreed with the commission that the task had been greater than they had expected.

Once the schedules are completed and filed with the commission, the next step will be to have the schedules reviewed by the commission and passed on.

The schedules once passed on, a hearing will be held and the attorneys will be advised as to any objection to any parcel or parcels and the reason for the objection by the commission. Any parcel which is objected to as not representative or for any other reason may be stricken from the schedule and another parcel substituted.

Mr. Lounsberry stated that while it had been tentatively agreed that each side should select about 600 parcels in the county, already he found the appellant had selected 783 and before the schedule was completed 80 more would be added, bringing the total number to 863 parcels.

The commission stated that there was no objection to filing as many as desired to give a true cross section of the county. The idea in limiting the selection to about 600 had been to curtail the cost of the proceeding but Mr. Hennessy said sufficient parcels should be selected to present a true picture. Each side will have to review the other parcels and have its experts place an appraisal on the parcels. This will mean both sides will have not only to appraise their own parcels selected by those of the opposition. The more parcels selected, the greater the cost of the proceeding.

Following the filing of complete schedules the commission will require about two weeks to go over the schedules submitted for approval or disapproval before the next hearing will be held.

In order to give time for the filing of the complete schedules an adjournment was taken until July 24. This will give Mr. Elsworth two weeks to complete his schedules and also allow the commission two weeks to go over the schedules submitted.

Following the next hearing when objections will be presented to any parcel of the schedules filed, the commission will get down to business of taking testimony and appraisals and fixing of values by real estate experts sworn by both the proponent and the appellant.

After the show, they gave Bernman 15 cents and sent him into a store for some cigarettes. When he came out they were gone.

Scientists of Twelve Nations Watch Eclipse

(By The Associated Press)

Scientists of a dozen nations waited hopefully today to discover new secrets of the sun.

They poised their instruments in readiness for an eclipse which will throw a 50-mile shadow on the earth's surface from the Mediterranean northeast to Alaska.

Their anxiety was heightened by reports of cloudy weather along virtually the entire path which the moon, racing between the earth and sun, will darken.

During the eclipse, the scientific expeditions whose apparatus is stacked in remote sections of Russia, Japan and Turkey, expected a minute of total darkness to provide opportunity for obtaining answers to many unsolved problems.

Two expeditions from the United States were in Russia. One representing Georgetown University and the National Geographic Society and the other Harvard University, the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and the Hayden Planetarium of New York.

The eclipse was expected to come at approximately 11 p. m., eastern standard time, and will not be visible in the United States.

Scientific research from the various stations was to be centered on the sun's corona, ordinarily hidden; on short wave radio transmission, and on the chromosphere, or upper layer of the sun.

Captain Magee Will Check Off 5,000th River Trip Friday

New York, June 18 (AP)—A river man for 40 years, Captain J. Rodney Magee will check off his 5,000th trip on the Hudson Friday.

The veteran skipper has been with the Hudson River Day Line for 36 years, plying up and down the river between Albany and New York during the navigation season and spending the winters with his wife at Kingston. He said he has watched towering liners slip past him for years without ever wishing he were aboard them.

Captain Magee denied emphatically that he knew every rock and shoal between New York and Albany.

"I don't know where they are," he said, "because I have never found them. And I don't want to."

The skipper said piloting a big river boat through the channel at night was "like walking through your own home in the dark. After you have lived in a house for a while you don't stumble over chairs when you get up to go down to the ice box for something to eat."

Captain Magee resides with his wife at 69 Washington avenue. This season he is in command of the steamer Robert Fulton, and was in command today as the big steamer berthed at Kingston Point.

Lightning Bolt Hit Story's Barn; Kills Horse, Man Uninjured

During the heavy downfall of rain early this morning a bolt of lightning struck the barn of Harold V. Story at Ulster Park. At the time one of the farm hands, Richard Barley, was at work in the barn. The bolt struck and killed one of the farm horses as the animal stood in its stall near where Barley was working, but Barley was uninjured. The bolt did not set the barn on fire and the only damage it did to the barn was to blow out the electric light fuses, plunging the barn in darkness. This was the third time that a bolt of lightning struck a barn on the same site as the present structure.

Derisive Shouts Create Turmoil in House of Commons When Foreign Minister Says Boycott Has Little Utility.

"CHEAP GIBES!"

Eden Flushes, Then Retorts, "The Honorable Members are Making Cheap Gibes!"

London, June 18 (AP)—Opposition members of the house of commons shouted "Shame! Resign!" at Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden today when he announced Great Britain would lead a move for the lifting of League of Nations' sanctions from Italy.

From government benches there came a little loyal cheering, but the roars of "shame!" created turmoil in the house.

Eden himself assumed much of the responsibility for the government's about-face on the question of the sanctions applied in an effort to prevent Italy's conquest of Ethiopia.

The storm of shouts burst out after Eden had announced, "His Majesty's government, after mature consideration on advice which I, as foreign secretary, thought it my duty to give, has come to the conclusion there is no longer any utility in continuing these measures as a means of pressure on Italy."

Recites Occasions.

Eden recited the occasions upon which Great Britain had previously taken the lead in attempting to settle the Italo-Ethiopian war and said that, since the league seemed to be perplexed, the British government considered it to be its duty to take the lead again.

"No doubt it would be quite as easy for us not to do so and to follow somebody else," said Eden, "but I don't believe that is the right attitude for this country to take."

When he started to speak, members of the Labor Party cried ironically: "Stand firm!"

Ambassador Dino Grandi of Italy sat in the diplomatic gallery and heard the foreign secretary's speech which was constantly interrupted by members on the floor.

Answers Hecklers.

Eden flushed under the barrage of heckling and once retorted angrily: "The honorable members are making cheap gibes!"

Over the storm, Eden declared: "We have to admit that the purpose for which sanctions were imposed has not been realized."

He added he considered the situation in Ethiopia one "which nothing but military action from outside the country could possibly reverse."

Then Eden demanded: "Is there any country, is there any section of opinion in this country which is prepared to take such military action?"

"I have no reason to think the League favors such a departure or such action, and no reason to suppose this country, on which the greatest burden of such a war must fall, desires it either."

He announced Britain's Mediterranean precautions would be continued to "cover the period of uncertainty which must necessarily follow the termination of sanctions."

Special precautions were taken in the House to prevent demonstrations.

Lloyd-George Chosen

David Lloyd-George, war-time prime minister, was chosen to lead the opposition's attack on the government's reversal of policy.

The lobbies of the House of Commons were the scene last night of a desperate, last-minute effort by sanctionist advocates to turn the tide against the government.

A throng of 200 delegates from the Women's National Liberal Federation besieged the chambers demanding to see their parliamentary representatives.

The women shouted for Eden to appear before them but were told the foreign secretary was not available.

550,000 Are Told Claims Are Absolute

New York, June 18 (AP).—An army of 550,000 investors in guaranteed mortgage certificates and mortgages of 27 companies being liquidated by the state was cheered today by the decision of a state court that their claims, amounting to more than $1,000,000,000 are absolute.

Supreme Court Justice Alfred Frankenthaler held they are absolute and not contingent as stockholders contended, in acting on a petition submitted by Louis H. Pink, state superintendent of insurance.

Pink, as liquidator of the 27 title and mortgage companies taken over by the state in 1933 and 1934, said there has never been an authoritative interpretation of the insurance law to guide him in passing on claims.

In ruling on a test case involving 40,000 claims against the New York Title and Mortgage Company, Justice Frankenthaler's decision followed, in the main, the suggestions of the insurance superintendent as to the proposed method of passing on the claims.

The court held that under a recent ruling of the Court of Appeals the claims of owners of participation certificates in a group series of mortgages are clearly absolute.

Whether the claims upon guarantees of whole mortgages and upon guaranteed participation certificates in single mortgages "are absolute or contingent" is more difficult to determine, he said.

The court ruled, however, that "the four claims involved in the present application are absolute and not contingent, and that they are therefore provable in liquidation proceedings."

The claims of investors would have been sharply reduced and in some cases eliminated, attorneys said, had the contention of the stockholders that claims were contingent, been upheld.

All to attend and spend a social hour with their friends and neighbors.

The Ladies' Guild of St. Thomas' Church will hold a special meeting on Thursday at the home of Mrs. Race to discuss plans for a picnic for the Sunday school children.

Miss Colonial Sue, the latest addition to the happy family at the Forsyth Park zoo arrived on Wednesday, and this morning she received her first breakfast in her new home from a bottle held in the hands of Assistant Superintendent Max Oppenheimer, "and her table manners are exceptionally good, considering her age."

Miss Sue was a gift from the State Conservation Department. She drinks two quarts of milk each day, and this milk is fed to her through a regular baby's bottle equipped with the usual nipple. The milk has to be first heated over a gas stove before it is fed to the fawn.

The fawn will not be placed on public exhibition until she grows a little older. "When Miss Sue is several weeks older she will make her public debut," said one of the park custodians this morning. In the meantime her feeding will be looked after by William Whitaker and Elmer Van Gassebeck, custodians at the park.

Another addition to the zoo family is Rusty, a red fox, presented to the zoo by a resident of Highland. Fortunately for the custodians Rusty does not have to be fed from a bottle. His teeth are very sharp and meat is his regular diet.

"I have decided to petition the United States Supreme Court for a rehearing on the New York minimum wage case," said Bennett in a brief statement.

Drouth Frightens Mid-west Farmers

Kansas City, June 18 (AP).—An oppressive blanket of early heat, extending from Alaska to Florida, brought new omens today to warn farmers of an old enemy—drouth.

Reports came also of grasshoppers swarming on midwestern crops.

In Alaska an unofficial reading of 110 degrees was reported at Seward yesterday, and only 100 miles south of the Arctic Circle, Fairbanks had a high of 82 degrees.

An emergency existed in the Dakotas and Montana, and crops suffered from drouth also in parts of Wyoming, Indiana, Tennessee, Alabama, Georgia, and the Carolinas. Livestock was being moved from some sections because of a feed shortage.

A survey disclosed that grasshoppers were swarming over grain fields in Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, Missouri, Montana, and spotted infestations were reported in Illinois, Wisconsin and Colorado.

7 Persons Slain

Dr. Frank Graves Gives Golden Jubilee Speech, Diplomas at New Paltz

Dr. Frank Pierrepont Graves, president of the State Department of Education, and Commissioner of Education, today at New Paltz Normal School delivered the address, commemorative of the golden jubilee of the institution, and presented to the graduating class their diplomas.

Dr. Graves, using for his subject "The Academic Mother and Her Children," said:

"The part assigned me in this golden jubilee is an exceedingly brief and agreeable one. I am to have the pleasure of bringing you the greetings of the University of the state of New York and of presenting the graduating class with their diplomas. This invisible 'University' which I represent is by both nature and statute the mother of, rather, a large brood. She has not yet degenerated into the Old Woman Who Lived in a Shoe, for she has so much assistance in managing her children through efficient local boards of trustees and visitors, that she is always gratified to see her academic family increase. Her relations with the normal schools, however, are somewhat more personal and intimate than with the colleges. The Regents of the University started out a century and a half ago to be the direct body of control for each of the colleges, but the University soon found them so refractory that she was glad to surrender her charge to groups of custodians nearer home; whereas she has always preserved immediate guardianship and protection over her beloved younger children, the normal schools of the state. Thus, the material relations of the University may be described as 'normal' in your case and 'abnormal' in the other.

"For some peculiar reason educational institutions are generally referred to in the feminine as 'she,' 'alma mater,' or 'mother of men.' I suspect that this is not so much because of their frailty as because of our desire to distinguish and pet them. But in one respect they differ widely from the female of the human species in that they are wont to boast of their age. Most women do not fault the fact that they have passed the half century mark, but we all rejoice today in helping the charming lady at New Paltz celebrate her fiftieth birthday. After all, though, age is not such an advanced age. We have half a dozen colleges in this state that have been a century in existence and one of them, Columbia, goes back a century and a half. Our oldest American college, Harvard, is this year commemorating the attainment of three centuries, and if we go over to Europe the earliest institutions there, Bologna, Paris, and Oxford, can trace their foundations back to three times three centuries. So there is much distance yet for the Lady of New Paltz to continue her travels and progress and multiply her victories and achievements.

The past decade has marked the greatest possible advances for the normal school here. Beautiful halls have been erected, the length of its course has been extended, the curriculum has been immensely improved, the number of its students has been trebled and might have been quintupled if there had been room, and its faculty has been greatly enlarged and developed in quality. Moreover, it has become a real college for educating teachers, instead of a training school with a high school attachment. While the process of dropping its academic tail and evolving from the stage of a tadpole to that of a frog has been somewhat tortuous and painful, no one would now care to revert to poling existence, even if it were possible. The course of our normal schools came from Germany, but the name itself is French. Now in France there is also a higher-type of normal school known as ecole normale superieure, which may be considered suggestive for New Paltz. The institution here is already one of higher education, and while it may not soon be dignified with the name of 'teachers college' or 'school of education,' its past achievements already entitle it to be known as 'normal-school superior.'

"I had almost overlooked my most important and gratifying duty—that of conferring the diplomas. Of course, you don't need them, for they only mark what has already been accomplished. But I suppose that you would like to have them to hang in a frame upon your wall and convince the skeptical and envious. I must admit, too, that you might have some trouble in securing certification from the State Education Department. If you could not show them. As a matter of fact, the situation is not unlike that with our coinage. The bullion does not need the stamp of the mint; it would be as good silver or gold (if we do any longer possess this metal at all) without it, but for the sake of our pride and convenience we prefer to have the mark of currency placed upon it. Therefore, in behalf of the Faculty and the Board of Regents, I have the honor and pleasure of distributing these diplomas and of offering you my congratulations."

Landon-Knox Choice Boosted G. O. P. Fund

Chicago, June 18 (AP).—The nomination of Gov. Alf M. Landon and Col. Frank Knox as the Republican team in the presidential race was credited today by Charles B. Goodspeed, the party's new treasurer, with swelling the campaign war chest with "surprising" speed.

Before the Cleveland convention named the Kansas for president and the Chicago publisher for his running mate, Goodspeed said the sale of "dollar certificates"—Republican campaign "shares" for which contributors pay $1—ran about 700 a day.

Last Saturday, the day after the ticket was completed, the sale zoomed to 1500, the treasurer added, and on Monday of this week the day's total was 2500.

"It's a peculiar thing," Goodspeed declared in an interview. "And the only way I can account for it is popular approval of the Landon-Knox ticket."

The sudden spurt in income leaves the party strongbox in "fine shape" for the shift of the Republican national capital from the east to the "grassroots" land of the midwest, the treasurer, a Chicagoan, asserted. National headquarters were automatically transferred from Washington to Chicago with arrival here last night of John Hamilton, new national chairman.

The war chest held between $250,000 and $260,000 at the close of the Cleveland convention, Goodspeed said. It was the first time Republicans had not emerged from a convention with a bare money cupboard.

ARCHITECT'S FEE

The architect for the proposed junior high school, a building never begun because of the action of the Common Council which opined that the city could not stand the expense at this time, has made known his bill for drawing and specifications for the abandoned project in the sum of $15,892.55 based on an agreement concerning the percentages allowed the architect for such work. According to the architect a certain portion of the drawings was about 93 per cent completed when the project was halted.

Corporation Counsel John M. Cashin in an opinion concerning the architect's fees states that "his (the architect) own bill admitted that the specifications and general working drawings were only 93 per cent completed. Therefore, it seems to me (Cashin) that he should not be paid upon the basis of the terms of the contract heretofore referred to, but he should be paid on the basis of the reasonable value of the work, labor and services performed by him in preparation of his plans, specifications and drawings."

This leaves the problem directly up to the members of the board of education, and unfortunately some of the members of that board are now changed from those who made the original contract with the architect. The decision of the board will have a considerable influence on the tax rate, and undoubtedly the new members of the board will find themselves in a difficult position in being forced to decide a question not of their own making.

Nevertheless, the problem must be settled, either on the basis of the contract or on the suggestions of the corporation counsel. It is admitted that the architect's fees for so complicated a structure will mount to a considerable sum. But it must also be admitted that payment on the basis of work actually done and not on percentages on a contract which was never completed is a reasonable position to take.

LEGAL SUPPLY AND DEMAND

A committee on professional economics, appointed by the New York County Lawyers Association, has just completed a four-year survey of the situation of the 15,000 lawyers living on practice in New York County. In 1933, considered a "typical depression year," more than half the number had incomes of less than $3,000 a year and 10 per cent of them were "virtually on relief." Furthermore, 75 per cent of the total income was received by 30 per cent of the group. There were further harrowing statistics, implying either that there were far too many lawyers in that area or that many people who needed legal service were not getting it.

The committee concludes that the profession is greatly over-crowded and proposes to remedy the situation not by plying under lawyers but by stiffening the standards for admission to the bar. It suggests also that legal clinics might be established which would eventually bring about a demand for legal services on the part of those who have never felt they needed or could afford a lawyer. Thus, it appears, the twin problems of over-production and under-consumption plague the professional world as they do the industrial and agricultural worlds. The nation with the right answer will win a big place in history.

EVERYBODY ON TOUR

William B. Stout, automotive genius who wants to strip auto of running boards and fenders, and put the engine behind, and spring the wheels independently, and seal the windows, and wash the air, and do a lot more revolutionary things to the old car, foresees a world on wheels. Or at least a nation. He says our cities in the future won't have any fixed population. We'll be come nomadic again, as our ancestors were when they trekked across the Alleghenies and on westward, or in those distant ages when they swept west from Central Asia.

Naturally we won't do it this time in covered wagons or ox carts. And we won't move in any definite direction. We'll have folding houses that can be packed into a trailer and hitched to the car in 20 minutes. We'll have breakfast, then pack up and be off for another hundred or thousand miles. The nation as a whole will be moving in all directions at once, though there will doubtless be a seasonal migration with the birds.

It sounds appealing in some ways. The general picture, to such few old fogies as may stick in one place and watch the rest of the nation swirling around them, will be confused. Maybe the rest of us will be confused too. The prospect doesn't seem conducive to clarity of mind or calmness of nerves. But a race that has stood what ours has in the past can probably get used to it.

MUSICAL MILLIONS

It is an eye-opener to most people to read that two Hollywood song writers, Leo and Eleanor Nimon, have brought suit for $1,000,000 against one of the big film producers for alleged pirating of a song they wrote, and that altogether they now have suits pending for $6,000,000 on similar claims.

Obviously there must be more to this ballad business than prosaic business men, doctors, lawyers, educators and plumbers have suspected. Of course the plaintiffs won't collect any such sums, no matter how good their cases may be. But the mere presentation of such claims in court is enough to set thousands of amateurs strumming their pianos and feeling around for song themes and trying to put rhymes together. No wonder Tin Pan Alley flourishes. Popular song-writing may not be a very lofty art in these days, but is Big Business.

SULPHUR FOR RHEUMATISM

About six months ago an article appeared in the British Medical Journal by Dr. D. Prestin who used muscular injections of sulphur suspended in oil in the treatment of fifty cases of chronic arthritis in which the definite cause of the arthritis was not known.

He divides his 50 cases into four different classes according to the amount of damage done to the joint—the ends of the bones, the cartilages separating the bones, the covering of the outer part of the joint and the moist lining of the joint. The four groups are:

1. The bone damage or injury is slight or absent.
2. The bone damage is slight and can only be discovered by the use of the X-ray.
3. The bone damage is severe, and can be noted without the X-ray. In some of these cases the damage has changed the shape of the joint—almost a dislocation present.
4. Where the larger joints and the joints of the spine are affected in elderly patients but little or no change is seen in the soft tissues—the flesh.

It was found that while these injections of sulphur suspended in oil helped patients in all four groups, the best results are to be expected in younger patients who have had the ailment but a short time and in whom the damage to the bones and cartilages was slight.

When there is much wasting of the muscles and contracture (tightening) of the muscles the improvement will be less, and when the limbs are drawn up and the joints partly dislocated even less improvement may be expected, though pain and stiffness may be relieved.

In no instance was the disease made worse nor has any harmful effect been observed provided the injection is given between attacks.

Treatment was not given during the acute attacks to elderly, feeble or undernourished patients with active organic trouble such as heart disease, or to very obese (overweight) patients.

It is likely that this sulphur treatment will now be given trials elsewhere and its real value to individual cases will become better known. Until then the present methods of treatment might well be continued.

MURDER TONIGHT

Chapter Six
QUAINT DETECTIVE

Will you be staying long, sir?" Edward Perry asked. His guest who had just signed the visitors' book in a firm and microscopically neat hand said, "I hardly know Mr.—"

"Perry, sir."

"Mr. Perry Three or four days anyway—possibly longer. Have you got any claret in the cellar?"

"There are a few bottles, sir, though we don't get much call for it here; wine drinking has gone out practically as you may say."

"A pity. I am a confirmed teetotalist—but perhaps Bible reading has gone out as well."

Perry grinned. "Not so much of it as there used to be, sir," he said. "It's more pictures than prayers nowadays in a manner of speaking."

He walked up two or three yards of well kept path and knocked precisely on the door. It was opened by a broad-shouldered man in police sergeant's uniform. The stiff collar of his jacket was open and a useful looking pair of feet were encased in comfortable carpet slippers. His right hand held a pen. When he spoke Hylton was struck at once by the richness of his voice and by the unexpected quality of it.

"What can I do for you?" he asked. "Let me introduce myself. I am Detective Inspector Kingsley Hylton from Scotland Yard. Here is my identity card."

James White moved back from the door with a welcoming gesture. Kingsley Hylton accepted the invitation and in a minute or two was sitting facing the other man in a pleasant but rather uncomfortably crowded room. The table which stood between them was littered with various typewritten and printed documents, and a book of police regulations lay open among them.

The two men look frank stock of each other in the light. Kingsley Hylton saw a strong, agreeable face crowned with black hair and distinguished by one of those square-shaped, dimpled chins which women, for some curious and deep-seated reason, find so irresistible. The in-

Kingsley Hylton counted his steps to the police cottage.

"Do you play chess, Mr. Perry?" his guest suddenly asked.

"Chess, sir? I don't know as I do; but Mr. White, the policeman, he's a great hand at it, he's your man if you want a game of chess any time."

The tall man smiled. "Very fortunate. I was just going to ask you the way to his house. I'm down from Scotland Yard to investigate this murder at Enderton Court—of course, you knew that didn't you?"

"Well, sir, I—"

"And my name's Kingsley Hylton, you know that too, didn't you?"

"I won't say I—"

"And I'm slightly mad like all great detectives."

Perry grinned uncertainly. "But not mad enough to do without food, so bacon and eggs in the morning order and very hot coffee at 8 o'clock sharp, and don't forget to look out that claret."

Edward Perry was definitely impressed. He picked up the visitors' book and studied the tiny writing, as neat as six point print.

"Kingsley Hylton London," then, putting the book down, he called to mind the prematurely bald head, the thick glasses, the thin lips, the disconcertingly quick eyes and the long restless hands.

"Well, it's a character and no mistake" was the landlord's comment as he hurried to the bar with this latest and most delectable addition to the positive orgy of speculation and discussion set up by the Enderton Court affair.

FOR curiosity (and also partly because he had a strong mathematical kink in his mind) Kingsley Hylton counted his steps from the turning of the Morechester Road to the police cottage. His long thin legs took an easy 25 inch stride. He found that the five hundredth step brought him almost exactly to the wicket gate, which he considered to be an endorsement of the innkeeper's "about a quarter of a mile."

The night was dry and dark, too dark indeed for him to be certain of his destination had not a neat little blue lamp with POLICE showing whitely from it been there to reassure him.

spector was used to summing men up quickly and he liked the look of Sergeant White.

"Before we really begin," he said, "there is a certain word which you have been told to expect isn't there?"

White nodded.

"I'll write it down," Hylton said, and drawing a sheet of paper towards him did so.

"Is that all right?"

"Right, sir," White answered smiling.

"Curious, isn't it," the inspector went on putting his gold pencil away, "how much the public believe we take on trust? Never take anybody on trust, White. I shan't trust you. I shall consider everything you say to be the outcome of local prejudice, ignorance, or narrow country outlook—but I shall pay attention to it for all that—and you, for your part, better look upon me as one of those too, too clever, over-the-hill people who can't see what's sticking out as plain as a pickaxe an inch in front of their own noses."

"Very good, sir," White answered, not one whit abashed by this somewhat unconventional opening.

The inspector drew out a leather case and offered the Sergeant a long thin cigar.

"Thank you, sir," he said helping himself.

"You look busy," the inspector said, indicating the crowded table.

"Busy?" the policeman laughed. "My word, sir, every policeman needs a clerk at his elbow today."

"Quite right. Too much paper work. Have you ever heard the theory that when five per cent of a nation's employables are in Government service it is in a fundamentally rotten state—it's about 3.5 per cent in this country at the moment and rapidly mounting."

"Now tell me about the murder."

James White drew a note book from a capacious side pocket and consulted its extremely neatly kept pages.

"Well, sir, on the night of the eighteenth—"

Surgery Seven O'clock.—Tombstone, Sask., Canada (P)—Crude but successful surgery saved the life of a baby chick attacked here by a cat. A farmer's wife skillfully stitched a wound over the tiny bird's skin and now, she reports, the chick is the most active in the flock.

People in the "house and buggy" were just as proud of their vehicles as we are of ours, and probably got more real satisfaction out of them.

SHOKAN

Shokan, June 17.—Frank Sharwell, secretary of the Y. M. C. A. at Norfolk, Va., spent the week-end with Mrs. Sharwell at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Bell. Mr. Sharwell came here from Silver Bay, Mass., where he was one of 1,100 Y men in attendance at a national convention. Mrs. Sharwell is remaining with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bell, for the summer months.

Kingston business men seen on our streets recently included Stewart L. Sonne, Frank Terwilliger and Luke Burlingham. West Hurley was represented by Robert Rowe and George Berry.

Another hard shower Monday evening served still further to cheer up the farmers. It looks like a good hay crop after all; corn is coming along fine and all appear to be making a good recovery following the drubbing given this small grain crop by the drouth.

Otto Grossman lost nearly a third of his young orchard trees last winter as a result of the damage done to bark by field mice.

A crew of reservoir employees is engaged in repairing concrete work on the bridges in the upper west basin sector. Some of the work is done on the under side of the structures, necessitating the use of scaffolding. This, on the Traver Hollow bridge for instance, requires steady hands and cool heads. The method of procedure is to chisel away the damaged masonry to a sound bed for the new concrete mixture. Arthur Trowbridge is the engineer in immediate charge of concrete work on reservoir jobs.

Guests at the Shokan House Sunday included Richard Marmion and daughter, Edna, of Bellairs, L. I., and Mrs. Lawrence Marmion of the Flatbush section of Brooklyn. Arthur Marmion is spending a week at the resort on the corner.

Herman Wendt, Sr., has joined his family at the Wendt place on the state road and is assisting his son with their filling station and camp business. The Wendts have lumber on the ground for a second overnite cabin which will be erected for them by Claude Rose.

Frank Barringer, Ashokan watershed inspector, is reported as planning to sell his Back Brook farm, formerly the Stevens property. The farm, one of the largest and best equipped in northern Ulster, has been worked for the past several years by Grant Every, son-in-law of Mr. Barringer.

A marriage of June 16, 1921, was that which united Luther A. Vandebogart, Lake Hill, to Julia Griley of Shady. The Rev. George O. Witsiey, pastor of the Ashokan M. E. Church, was the officiating minister and the ceremony was witnessed by Dora K. and George E. Rose.

The peonies, roses and other blooms in the yard of Miss Edna Longyear form one of the prettiest sights in the north shore country at this time. Miss Longyear enjoys an enviable reputation as a successful horticulturist.

Edward Moran of the Bronx spent Sunday with his family at the home of Francis Hughes.

The Rev. August Pfau and Mrs. Pfau entertained several relatives from New Jersey at the Reformed Church manse Sunday.

The rainy spell has encouraged fishermen to renew their efforts at luring the big pickerel and trout from the reservoir depths. Minnows are a favorite live bait, though some good catches have been made with night walkers. One visitor said Sunday he "turned a big pickerel over" but failed to get him. And that, while rather discouraging, is nevertheless considerably more exciting than failure to contact a single trout or pickerel in a day's fishing. Suckers and perch are small consolation for not getting a strike from one of the more important piscatorial denizens of the Ashokan.

WHITFIELD

Whitfield, June 16.—Mrs. Rose Hornbeck and family entertained supper guests from Walton Saturday evening.

The Children's Day exercises held at the church Sunday morning were largely attended and much credit is due to the teachers who helped with the training of the children.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Hornbeck of Stone Ridge, Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Osterhout and son, James, of Dutchess, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur G. Davis and daughter, Marjorie, were entertained Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. Della Davis for supper.

Miss Ailsie Rider and sister, Mrs. Henry Seymore of Ellenville spent Saturday afternoon in Kingston.

Ned Gillipie spent the week-end with his parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur G. Davis spent Friday in Kingston.

The Reformed Sunday School will serve a strawberry supper in the basement of the church Friday evening, June 19. Everybody welcome.

LYONSVILLE

Lyonsville, June 17.—Mrs. Charles Galloway spent a couple of days with Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Beatty and Miss Alice Beatty of Kyrleke the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Davis have been entertaining Mrs. Smith of Kingston for a few days.

Rufus Lyons called on Mr. and Mrs. Peter L. Davis on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Selma Grassara are building a bungalow in this place. Floyd Davis has employment at the present time on the road.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Alexander entertained relatives on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pyke and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Scherzer called on Mr. and Mrs. William Davis on Thursday evening.

Miss Lucy J. Lyons of Whitfield spent Sunday afternoon with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Lyons.

THE HARRIERS

TALKS TO PARENTS

Is This All?

By BROOKE PETERS CHURCH
 A young girl recently discussing some of the short-comings of her generation, ended up with the challenging statement: "We were most of us brought up without any real religion. We were given no faith, so to speak."

Of course this is not by any means an exact statement. There are many communities and homes where there is the truest kind of religious faith, and where there are ideals quite as high as those of the past. There is some truth, however, in the accusation. Hundreds of families have thrown off all religious affiliation and with it much of the faith of their past; others have reached the point where they are frankly skeptical; still others are puzzled and confused.

Necessarily many ideals disappear when religion falls. Skepticism and doubt affect the hopes and standards of the past. Today everything is at some time laughed at and questioned. The children feel it. Even if they do not find it in their homes, they run across it at school or in the homes of their friends. Nothing is too sacred to be mocked.

Adults may be able to get along without idealism, though they are not apt to be happy if they do. It is their misfortune, not their fault, that they cannot look up at anything or anyone. But for children such an outlook on life is most difficult. They need something beyond themselves and their own small circle to work towards, some star to which they may hitch their little wagons.

Without idealism they are "like little children facing the dark. They are afraid of the future and its empty sameness." "Is this all?" They were brought into the world, cared for, trained and cherished, for what?

Neglected Island Rediscovered
 Recife, Brazil (P).—Forgotten since first explored by an unnamed American 30 years ago, the Isle of Santo Aleixo, 100 miles long and half as wide, was rediscovered recently by Alfred von Buzowski, amateur geologist, who said a volcanic eruption at the bottom of the Atlantic centuries ago thrust it up 44 miles southeast of here.

A Washington Daybook

By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON—Mining and oil prospecting interests, caught in the pinch of the new tax bill pending in congress, carried to the Cleveland Republican convention their fight for permission to revise their corporate capitalization so the pluck wouldn't hurt so much.

They are non-partisan about their desires. They will go to Philadelphia also seeking a plank urging relief.

More particularly they want an amendment to the bill giving more favored excess profits and capital stock tax treatment to new corporations, such as mine development companies and independent oil prospectors, while the concerns are getting on their feet.

To illustrate their view, consider a mining company developing a gold property with a $100,000 capitalization. (Add $100,000 capitalization doesn't always mean the company has that much money.)

Now Plan Works
 If they are taxed at $1,000,000 they must pay the capital stock tax of $1.00 per $1,000 on the whole amount. (And $100,000 capitalization doesn't always mean the company has that much money.)

Yet if they capitalize for only $100,000 and then strike one making the property worth $1,000,000 they must pay an excess profits tax on all but 10 per cent of the income. The tax ranges from 3 to 30 per cent.

Sundown Stories

Asking Mrs. Quacko

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER
 THE Puddle Muddlers were in a rage at the thought that Mrs. Quacko might be ashamed, not merely of them, but of their beloved Willy Nilly.

But after a while Willy Nilly said: "It's really not fair of us to be saying what Mrs. Quacko may have in her duck mind. We don't actually know. And we're becoming angry without reason."

"However, I really do not blame her if she is ashamed of me. I am an odd looking creature."

"You're not, you're not!" protested all the Puddle Muddlers.

"You can't judge. You're fond of me and when you're fond of someone you think he is all right. Still, I thought Mrs. Quacko was fond of me."

"Oh, she is. There must be! I'm beginning to feel there is a mistake somewhere—somewhere we don't understand," said Rip, as he put his head in Willy Nilly's lap. The little man stroked the silky ears of his dog and said:

"We'll go down and see her right away. Perhaps it would be better if you all stayed here and let me go alone."

"Yes, you may be able to talk to her better when she is not surrounded by all of us," agreed Honey Bear.

Willy Nilly went down to the pond and the others waited up by his house.

"Mrs. Quacko," he called as he approached the pond. "Mrs. Quacko, I've come to ask you a most important question."

But Mrs. Quacko had left the pond.

Tomorrow—"The Puddled Ducks"

No one need ask how the people from the heart of the country, voters in "typical prairie states" such as Illinois, Iowa, South Dakota, North Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas and part of Minnesota will feel as a result of Mr. Farley's contemptuous observation.

Possibly Mr. Farley's contempt for the West begins as far east as Pittsburgh. This "typical prairie state" reference may be extremely expensive to Mr. Farley's campaign plans before he gets rid of it.—Sioux City, Iowa, Journal.

Senator Pittman of Nevada proposed an amendment which would permit corporations every two years to increase or reduce their capital valuation. Thus a profit, say, of $100,000, which would be 100 per cent on a capitalization of $100,000, could be changed into a profit of only 10 per cent (and no excess profits tax) by increasing capitalization to $1,000,000.

Revision Protested
 IMMEDIATELY a Senate protest went up that big corporations then could juggle their capital in times of fat or lean earnings so as to minimize excess profits and capital stock taxes.

Farley proposed that that corporations be permitted to revalue

Woodstock Library's Annual Meeting Held, Officers Are Chosen

Woodstock, June 18.—The annual meeting of the Woodstock Library Association was held at the library on the evening of June 11, to elect officers and transact other business of the library.

Officers elected were: President, Bruno L. Kimm, re-elected; treasurer, W. S. Elwyn, re-elected; secretary, Mrs. J. B. Leary, re-elected; vice president, W. C. Travis, elected to replace Mrs. C. E. Linden.

Chairmen of the various committees were appointed: Finance, Martin Comau; books, Miss Isabel Doughty; publicity, Towar Boggs; membership, Mrs. Nancy Schoonmaker; fair, Mrs. Irving Brown. In addition a nominating committee was appointed composed of Mrs. Schoonmaker, chairman, and of two members, Miss Alice Wardwell and Mrs. C. E. Linden.

The treasurer, W. S. Elwyn, read a report for the fiscal year of 1935, as follows:

Total on hand Dec. 31, '35 $1,170.84. The circulation of books has risen steadily during the last three years. In 1933, it was 16,835 volumes, in 1934, it had risen to 17,429, and in 1935 it had reached 19,131. The $252.65 spent for new books purchased 203 volumes, which speaks well for the shopping ability of those in charge of purchases.

A total of 237 volumes were rebound, at a cost of only 17 cents per volume. This item of economy is largely due to the activity of the binding committee headed by Miss Elsa Kimball, and composed of Mrs. Linden, Miss Owen, Mrs. Parker, Mrs. Buttrick, Mrs. Gus Schrader and Miss Wardwell. Last summer Mrs. Delano gave a number of valuable books to the library, of which the bindings had been damaged by mice. These books are now being rebound by the committee and will be placed in circulation as soon as possible.

The library has 273 members. Subscriptions reached an average of $2.52 per member, which is an all time high, ascribed to the leaflet gotten out earlier in the year and authored by Mrs. Nancy Schoonmaker, who was highly praised at the meeting for her valuable service. Due to this leaflet the library has acquired 20 new members.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Travis have worked Sundays and Mondays all year, with the assistance last summer of Miss Jean Strain, to check the catalogue as well as to add to the catalogue 1,112 books hitherto unrecorded. There are now catalogued 7,109 volumes, divided as follows: Adult: Fiction, 659; non-fiction, 3,058; total, 3,717. Juvenile: Fiction, 577; non-fiction, 2,815; total, 3,392.

Because of a reduced budget, the book committee's funds have been curtailed, and there were a hundred less volumes purchased than last year. However, the number of gifts was far larger. Unfortunately, gifts do not always include books needed by the library.

During the meeting, a member present asked to know what sum was allotted to the library by the town, stating that the town of Highland gives its library $1,000, the town of New Paltz gives $1,000, and the town of Haines Falls gives $500, and that these libraries were similarly situated to that of Woodstock. This person was informed that the town grants to the Woodstock library amount to $100.

The achievement of which the library is most proud is its Extension Service to various District Schools (5 Districts). This service has risen steadily from year to year, and has become an indispensable aid to teachers and pupils alike. In 1933, 1,603 books were distributed to the children of the District Schools. In 1934, the number had increased to 1,125 and in 1935 it reached the high of 1,354, with every indication that the number will be even greater in 1936.

A resolution was passed to allow the free use of the library only for meetings of groups of a non-sectarian, non-political and non-commercial nature. The discussion groups conducted by Mrs. Decker are part of the regular library activities.

After the general meeting, a trustees' meeting took place, at which the date of the fair was discussed.

POLITICS at Random

THE present confused status of the much-advertised constitutional issue has stirred a chorus of "I-told-you-so's" from those who have doubted all along whether constitutional questions would figure in any clear-cut manner in the campaign of 1936.

Certainly as other political subject is surrounded, at the moment, with greater popular befuddlement. Even if a sharp line of disagreement between the parties had developed heretofore—and none did—the supreme court decision in the minimum wage case would have raised much questioning and uncertainty in the public mind.

On the one hand is the silence of Mr. Roosevelt, and the hesitant attitude of the Democrats generally. Some of them want to amend the constitution, and some still are contending that it is possible to accomplish the desired ends without an amendment.

On the other side is the expression of the Republican platform that no amendment is necessary, and the declaration of the presidential nominee, Governor Landon, that he conditionally favors an amendment.

How can such a cross-crossing of opinion be translated into a Democratic-Republican issue which will mean much to the ordinary voter?

League Leads Attack
THE chain of events which led up to the present situation is so interesting and so extraordinary that it is well worth reviewing. "Early in his administration, Mr. Roosevelt began to be accused by some of his political foes of seeking to circumvent and nullify the constitution. The American Liberty league was founded, said its charter, "to defend and uphold the constitution."

The NRA decision, followed by the President's "horse and buggy" observation, led to widespread supposition that the Democrats would favor some sort of amendment. Several cabinet officials hinted broadly that an amendment might be considered necessary.

Yet the project fell far short of an authentic party declaration, and the "horse and buggy" talk gave way to efforts to pass new and acceptable legislation under the constitution as one after another of the New Deal laws was rejected by the supreme court.

Throughout this period ranking Republican leaders spoke often in eulogy of the constitution and the courts as the palladium of liberty—a sentiment incorporated, in fact, in one section of the Republican platform adopted at Cleveland.

Court Tangles Issue
THEN, just on the eve of the Cleveland convention, came the supreme court decision invalidating New York state's minimum wage law. It was read by many as a denial of the right of the states to deal with that subject.

It took the Republicans, then already on the way to their convention city, completely by surprise. After much telephoning between Cleveland and Toledo, the Landons offered a plank for a constitutional amendment empowering the states to pass labor legislation.

Incidentally, they also presented a second proposal to amend the constitution to permit the President to veto individual items of appropriation bills; so that, insofar as they could speak for him, Governor Landon's friends had put the prospective Republican nominee in the position of being the first to advocate, not one, but two, amendments.

Both of these proposals the platform committee rejected, amid great protest that the Republican party hardly could go on record, under the circumstances, as the only party favoring constitutional changes. To which Mr. Landon rejoined in his celebrated telegram, saying he might want an amendment anyway.

Meantime, in the southwest, Mr. Roosevelt was throwing out some suggestions that he liked the constitution, and that the only trouble was with its interpretation.

Will the Philadelphia Democratic convention do something to make all of this intelligible, or will it only make matters worse?

Road Tests Here for Drivers Unchanged

No notice has been received at the local Motor Vehicle Bureau office on Fair street as yet of any reduction in the number of road tests for drivers each week and tests continue to be given each Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday.

However in some sections of the state there has been a decided slowing up and inspectors are far behind in their schedule of tests for operators' licenses. An increase of from 6 to 8 per cent in the number of new applicants, coupled with drastic new safety measures, accounting for the slowing up of the examinations.

In some sections of the state applicants face a delay of three weeks. The pressure has been felt chiefly in New York city, Westchester and Nassau counties and Long Island, according to Charles A. Harnett, commissioner of motor vehicles.

Commissioner Harnett pointed out that the legislature appropriated only $100,000 this year instead of $250,000 requested. This provides for 15 inspectors instead of the requested 60.

New Strains Show Mosaic Resistance

Geneva, N. Y., June 18.—Only through the development of immune varieties can growers of Green Pod Refugee beans hope to circumvent the serious losses they sustain each season from bean mosaic, declares Dr. A. L. Harrison, plant disease specialist at the State Experiment Station here, who has been seeking a remedy for this malady that annually exacts a heavy toll from those who grow snap beans for the canning factory.

Much progress has already been made in this direction, he says, and it is hoped that within the near future sufficient seed stocks of some of the most promising of the new strains will be available for wide tests by bean growers.

Many growers fail to recognize mosaic, the tendency being to blame adverse weather, poor soil, off-type plants, in fact almost everything but the disease itself for the poor showing that the plants make. Losses from mosaic sustained by snap bean growers in New York state often amount to 20 per cent of the crop, while almost every field is affected to a greater or less degree, says Dr. Harrison. The disease also causes misshapen and crooked pods, produces dark spots in the can, and lessens the length of time which the beans can be held before canning. All serious drawbacks with the canner. The Experiment Station has issued a bulletin on mosaic in Refugee beans prepared by Dr. Harrison. A copy of this bulletin may be obtained without cost upon request to the station.

"Bean mosaic is a seed-borne disease," says Dr. Harrison. "In the field the chief mode of spread is by means of various sucking insects. Winds and cultivators also may aid in disseminating the disease. Bean mosaic does not spread as rapidly in exposed portions of fields as it does in the sheltered portions."

"The control of bean mosaic by planting mosaic-free seed and by field roguing has been successful only where mosaic did not spread very rapidly. Marked progress, however, has been made in the development of mosaic-immune stocks by making reciprocal crosses between the susceptible Stringless Green Pod Refugee and immune Robust, and then by making reciprocal back-crosses between the most desirable mosaic-immune hybrids and the Stringless Green Pod Refugee. The side being immune to mosaic, some of these back-cross hybrids possess many of the desirable characteristics of the Refugee bean and so should make good canning varieties." Extensive tests of these and other promising strains will be made this season.

DELIVERS OWN FUNERAL ORATION

L. F. Ballin, 80-year-old farmer of Danville, Ill., who said he wanted no minister "prattling" over his bier, preached his own funeral oration to 1,000 "mourners" on his farm, then joined in a picnic lunch that followed. (Associated Press Photo)

Libraries unquestionably may be classified as necessities in this modern age. Regardless of the excellence of schools, libraries must continue to supply reading material to the public.

The fact is

① THAT YOU MAY SPEND 7½ DAYS EACH YEAR—WAITING FOR HOT WATER FOR DISHES.

② THAT A LIGHT BURNING ALL NIGHT MAY USE LESS THAN 2½ WORTH OF ELECTRIC CURRENT

③ THAT THE MODERN GAS RANGE GIVES MORE WORKING SPACE IN THE KITCHEN

EXPLANATIONS:

1. Allowing ten minutes for water to heat after each meal, or half an hour per day, totals 180 hours per year, or 7½ days of 24 hours. With automatic gas water-heating, there is no waiting at all, and the total cost, gallon-for-gallon is very little more than for makeshift methods.

2. A 25-watt electric bulb will burn only ¼ of a kilowatt-hour of electricity in ten hours. This amount of electricity at low Central Hudson rates will always cost less than two cents, and in many cases less than one cent, depending on the amount of electricity used previously.

3. Modern gas ranges are designed not only to provide the utmost cooking convenience and economy, but also to provide additional working space at convenient table height, something that every housewife can use for step-saving. When surface burners are not in use, they are covered by a porcelain top, and there is about six square feet of usable table surface. Half of this space is always available for use, even when the burners are turned on.

HIGHLAND

Highland, June 17.—There were some 75 bonus checks received at the local postoffice and they were all delivered but eight when the office closed at night. It required no extra delivery and it is said those receiving them called at the office in person. The postmaster, George I. Dean, reports that 100,000 baby chicks have been sent and received at the office this spring. In fact a shipment was in the office Tuesday morning for delivery. There is no one within the Highland territory who raises for shipping but those sent out come from the Kauder farm across the hill from New Paltz, and brought into this office they go out direct without any extra handling.

Lloyd Post, No. 193, American Legion, held a largely attended meeting Monday evening and rejoiced over the receiving of the bonus checks. Milo F. Winchester gave a showing of government owned war pictures as well as pictures he had taken of the Memorial Day parade and the activities on the athletic field in the afternoon. Refreshments were served by the Alpine restaurant and those out were interested in the activities of Sergeant Lockhart and Walter Clark and the bridge game. Commander William H. Maynard presided at the meeting.

Mrs. Emily Hasbrouck underwent an operation for mastoid at Vassar Hospital late Saturday evening and was reported Tuesday as holding her own. Mrs. Hasbrouck returned from the south the first of May and a cold developed which has resulted in the mastoid.

Mrs. Chris Drckman of Ridgewood, N. J., arrived Tuesday as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver J. Tillson.

The Town Board met Tuesday afternoon to discuss the question of sewer tax. The members of the board on Monday morning, with Dr. J. W. Blakely as health officer for the town of Lloyd traveled the length of the brook beginning at Castellanos, (the old toll gate) to the residence of Mrs. Katherine Hacksteiner on Vineyard avenue.

They found too much sewage entering the stream in spite of notices posted along the brook. There have been PWA workers for some time cleaning out the brook and in spite of that residents along the stream are still dumping cans and garbage.

Dr. Blakely was authorized to send notices to everyone who was polluting the stream that such practices must stop.

The first red berries of the season were in market Tuesday morning from the farm of William Abrose and the first sweet cherries for sale were brought in from John Bells.

Mrs. Amelia Dickinson, Mrs. Benjamin Gedney and the Misses Edith and Hattie Dickinson drove to New York Tuesday for the day.

Mr. and Mrs. Stockholm Baldwin have taken the three furnished rooms in the Blakely house on Vineyard avenue.

Miss Bertha Dean, daughter of postmaster George E. Dean has just undergone an operation for gall stones at Vassar hospital.

'ALFALFA BILL' VISITS LONDON

In what he termed a "purely social visit—no political significance," Alfalfa Bill Murray, picturesque former Democratic governor of Oklahoma, paid his respects to Gov. Alf M. Landon, Republican presidential nominee, at Topeka, Kas. He declined to say that he would support Landon. (Associated Press Photo)

PAINTER FINDS CAREER DUE TO "SCOTCH" STRAIN

St. Louis (A)—Despite his name, there's a strain of Scotch in Frank Podszuck, and that's how he became a painter of horses, he admits.

Five years ago, he sent for an art correspondence course for his 10-year-old son. The boy didn't like it. Rather than waste it, the father took the course.

Podszuck had been interested in drawing since he was a boy, but after jobs as pressman, plumber, acrobat, building contractor and, finally, apartment manager, his interest in art had waned.

He started with the usual landscapes and sketches, but an early admiration for horses led him to specialize. Recently he sold two horse paintings. Now he is at work on a third.

Today, milk accounts for approximately one-fifth of all farm cash income contrasted with one-eighth a decade ago. This increase has taken place without any stimulus from benefit payments, direct subsidies, processing taxes or production curtailments.

MODES OF THE MOMENT

Cotton
steps out
to dance.
Liana Merwin

Keeping cool and fresh looking during summer evening parties is an art. To aid in the difficult task designers have evolved a number of cool crisp frocks of linen, plique and cotton lace which may appear with equanimity on any dance floor.

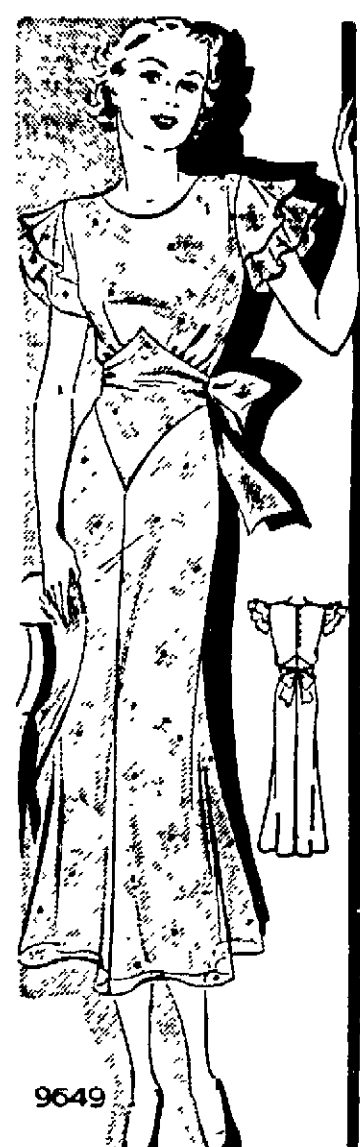

The gown of multi-colored cotton lace, sketched above, is low cut at back, with fitted bodice and waist-line and a fairly full skirt.

The predominating color in this model is wine with delphinium blue grosgrain ribbon forming the shoulder straps and belt. Another model equally effective chose brown for its predominating color and used mimosas yellow for its contrasting trim.

The brief bolero jacket with notched collar, has puffed sleeves that come just below the elbow, yet they may be worn pushed-up high with equal smartness.

YOU'LL LOVE THE FEMININITY OF THE MARIAN MARTIN FROCK

Pattern 9649

Splashes of color on sheer voile!—Shadowy chiffon! Can't you vision this love of a frock made up in your favorite material with a contrasting shade for the demure row of tiny buttons down the back? Ever so feminine, is this dainty model with its double tier of fly-away ruffles and fluttering half-way sash. Growing-up 'Teens will love it as much as grown-up 'Twenties! Easy to make, too, is this fetching frock and the Complete, Diagrammed Sew Chart shows you just how to go about its cutting and stitching. You're sure of its fitting well, too, for the clever giraffe that rises and falls in points is snugged at the waist by that adorably girlish sash. Wear this frock on all occasions, and look your charming best.

Pattern 9649 may be ordered only in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 16 requires 3½ yards 39 inch fabric.

Home Institute MODERN CANNING METHODS

Right now is canning time. Can strawberries for sauce. Make sun-preserved strawberry and rhubarb jam. Fill jars with juice for fruit punch or sirup for puddings. For the beautiful sun-preserved, in which the berries become transparent as gems, hull, wash and drain two quarts of ripe, perfect strawberries. Place them in a preserving kettle in layers of berries and sugar, using two quarts of sugar. Add juice of one lemon, let stand a half hour. Heat slowly to boiling-point, cook five minutes. Pour into shallow pans and cover each with a sheet of glass, as shown in sketch. Set in hot sun three days, stirring gently two or three times a day. Turn into small sterilized glasses, and seal with paraffin.

Do you know the "teapot trick" with paraffin? Melt it in a small enameled teapot. Then it's easy to pour paraffin onto preserves. No burnt fingers, and you can easily re-melt paraffin in teapot.

Many fruits hold their shape better if canned by the cold-pack method. Full instructions for this method; processing for glass jars or tin cans; many new, delicious recipes for preserves, pickles, canned meats—all in our 40-page booklet, NEW WAYS OF CANNING FRUITS, VEGETABLES AND MEATS. No failures, many delightful surprises, if you follow directions.

Send 15c for our booklet, NEW WAYS OF CANNING FRUITS, VEGETABLES AND MEATS, to Kingston Daily Freeman, Home Institute, 109 West 19th street, New York. Write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

Miss Schryver Told Of Southern Lands

A Salem, Oregon, paper says that Miss Edith Schryver completely charmed a Salem audience recently as she told of her impressions of the southern hemisphere, illustrating her lecture with slides. Miss Schryver, accompanied by Miss Lord, left Manila a year ago last March on an unique world trip.

She told of Java, one of the first stops on her trip; Cape Town, South Africa, with many formal and informal gardens and hospitable people; the cities of South America, magnificently planned and with beautifully kept parks. Buenos Aires she found cosmopolitan in every sense of the word. There was a thrilling trip north over the Andes by plane. Mexico she found a land of color, with its interesting old cathedrals and flower markets filled with brilliant blooms.

Miss Schryver told her audience that after leaving Mexico and flying on to Los Angeles and thence to Salem that it seemed "good to arrive here, where it is green and one can actually breathe."

NT. TREMPER.
Mt. Tremper, June 18.—The ladies of the Reformed Church will hold a supper at the church hall on Wednesday evening, June 24, from 5-8 p. m. until all are served. A very appetizing menu has been planned, consisting of ham, rolls, salads, baked beans, pickles, jelly, and cakes of various kinds. A cordial invitation is extended to all to attend. Proceeds for benefit of the church.

About 30 per cent of the nation's milk supply is used as "food milk" for cooking and drinking; about 33 per cent for butter; 5 per cent for cheese; four per cent for condensed milk; two per cent for ice cream and 25 per cent on farms. The dairy industry must utilize milk from 35 million cows and two million horses, or three-fourths of the farms in the United States every day.

Fight on Cabbage Worms About Due

Geneva, June 19.—Dainty white butterflies hovering over the garden or the cabbage field may be pretty to look at, but they spoil trouble in the form of tattered and torn leaves and often severe losses to the grower unless prompt measures are taken to destroy the worms that develop from the eggs deposited on the plants by these butterflies. Cabbage, cauliflower, broccoli and brussels sprouts are equally susceptible to attack by the cabbage worm, it is said.

Just what the best measures are for different parts of the state are set forth in a circular issued by the Experiment Station here which also gives an account of the life history of the common green cabbage worm and tells how to distinguish it from other worms sometimes infesting cabbage and closely related plants. A copy of the circular may be obtained without cost upon request to the station.

The common cabbage worm is said to be of European origin and is believed to have been introduced into this country by way of Quebec more than sixty years ago. It is now regarded as the most common and destructive of the green worms that feed on cabbage, and the white butterfly that are the adult stage of the worms are a common sight in cabbage fields from early spring until late fall. The cabbage looper, a pale green worm that moves like a measuring worm, sometimes becomes abundant, especially at Long Island, as does also the caterpillar of the diamond-back moth. The control measures recommended for the common cabbage worm are also effective against these other two pests, although they are more resistant to treatment.

The most critical period for cabbage worm control in western New York usually extends from about the middle of July to the latter part of August, say the experiment station specialists. Two to three applications of the recommended sprays or dusts during this period usually give satisfactory protection. On Long Island, treatments should probably begin two weeks earlier and should be continued for a longer period in the fall. Directions for the use of derris powder in place of arsenate of lead as well as for the standard poison spray or dust are given with the formulas worked out both for large plantings and for the home garden.

The average American man weighs 153 pounds, the average woman 140. The average man carries in his pockets ¼ pound of money, keys, pencils, and the like. The average woman carries 1¼ pounds in her handbag, says a Toledo scale company.

Reception to Pastor of Albany Ave. Baptist

A reception will be given to the pastor and his wife, the Rev. and Mrs. Arthur S. Cole, by the congregation of the Albany Avenue Baptist Church Friday evening, at 8 o'clock. This reception is in recognition of 25 years of service with the church. Mr. Cole having come as pastor in 1911. Members of the church and congregation and their families are invited. An interesting program has been arranged.

People long all winter for summer weather, and then kick about it.

SAMSONVILLE

Samsonville, June 18.—Lawrence Kunkle unloaded coal for Alonzo Haver of Ashokan on Tuesday.

Friends of Mrs. Lorenzo Decker of Tabasco are sorry to hear of her illness. All hope she may soon recover.

The Ladies' Aid of Samsonville will hold a social in the hall on Tuesday night, June 23. The public is invited. Refreshments will be for sale. Ice cream, cake, coffee, etc.

The Rev. C. E. Hewitt was calling and getting acquainted with the people of his charge on Tuesday.

Mrs. Mary J. Beesmer is slowly recovering from her attack of the shingles.

Friends of H. Carlton and wife are glad to see them back to their camp. Vivian Dennis of Kingston spent Friday night and Saturday at the Beesmer residence.

Mrs. Mary Moore and daughter entertained friends from Long Island over the week-end.

Dobbin's Last Stand. Independence, Mo.—The only horse in Independence, old Dobbin, is dead. For years and years he pulled a two-wheeled cart in a cemetery, and his spirit will go marching on. The city council rejected a proposal to replace him with a truck, voting to get another Dobbin.

Little Man's Busy Day.

Dallas, Tex.—All in one day, the following things happened to 9-year-old Brian Barrett:

He twisted his toe in a bicycle wheel. Pretty soon his playful brother hit him with a brick. A wasp stung him. He scratched his leg on some briars, and, winding up the day, he fell off a barn and received a cut that required seven stitches.

What's in a Name.

Oak Park, Ill.—They laughed when he came to the village hall, announced he was "Mr. Bonus" and wanted to cash his bonus bonds. But Kenneth C. Bonus brought witnesses who proved that that was his name and that he served in the medical corps in the World War. Now he runs the Bonus Pharmacy.

Opportunity.

Bayard, Neb.—Gov. R. L. Cochran and State Engineer A. C. Tilley waited and waited in their parked car before there was a break in the line of automobiles crossing a one-way bridge near here, bound for a picnic grounds at Chimney Rock, Neb.

When they finally got to Bayard they promised the citizens the state would grant two much-sought improvements—widen the bridge and the four mile stretch of road between the two points.

Nonchalant.

Chicago.—Fire broke out in the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Butler. Mrs. Butler shouted to awake the other members of the family. Noisy fire apparatus rolled up, bells clanging. A chattering crowd gathered. Adolph Lock, a roomer, dashed out with two year old Jimmy Butler.

When the family took refuge in a neighbor's home, they found Jimmy was still sleeping peacefully.

Cleanliness is the greatest defender of health against illness and the communicable diseases; and cleanliness is within the reach of all. Soap is cheap and water is plentiful. The will to be clean is all that we have to supply.

NAVIGATION NOTES

Efforts to revive passenger travel on the Hudson river have been very successful this season with many novel attractions being offered by the Night Line to induce passengers to travel by water up the Hudson. Business is reported much better than in many years.

A new excursion which will permit New York city people to visit the state capital and enjoy a very inexpensive outing is now being offered. Officials of the Night Line have planned a series of mid-week excursions at reduced rates to Albany. Boats will leave New York city at 6 p. m. each Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday and sail from Albany at

Prof. Albert Einstein Was in Kingston

Prof. Albert Einstein, noted German scientist who has been at Princeton University for the past year doing research work, stopped over last night with a party of friends at the Governor Clinton Hotel enroute from Saranac Lake to his home in Princeton.

The discoverer of the law of relativity shunned newspaper men and fled to his room when he learned efforts were being made to interview him.

Einstein had been at Saranac Lake in the Adirondacks for the purpose of discussing the prosaic matter of renting a summer home where he might escape the curiosity seekers whom he claims even "peer in my windows" at Princeton. Tuesday Einstein talked cottages with Herbert R. Leggett at Saranac Lake and selected one which is in an exclusive section, away from the main road and surrounded by dense woodland overlooking Saranac Lake. Tuesday night the authority on relativity spent at Saranac Lake and yesterday drove as far as Kingston where after stopping over night he went on to New Jersey this morning.

Einstein has shunned publicity on his trip and the famous mathematician lapsed into German when outsiders tried to talk to him.

Out of every 100 buttons made today for women's dresses, 50 are white, 25 are red, 5 are pink, 5 are yellow, 5 are blue, 4 are green, 1 is orange, and 5 are scattered through the several thousand other colors available.

9 p. m. each Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, giving visitors a full day in Albany to explore the state buildings and other scenic points.

Pay Taxes to the County Treasurer

Local property owners who have not paid their taxes for the present season may do so now at the office of County Treasurer Pratt Boice in the county court house on Wall street. Various town tax collectors have made their final settlement with the county treasurer and all rolls are now on file in the office of County Treasurer Pratt Boice.

Taxes may be paid to the county treasurer until September 15 without additional interest charges. This was made possible through a resolution passed by the Board of Supervisors at the last meeting which extended the time for payment without interest until September 15. It is expected that this will induce many late payments.

There are a number of out of town residents who own summer properties in Ulster county who do not pay taxes until the summer season when they move to their temporary summer residence here. All payment of such tax must now be made to the county treasurer and not to the local town collector.

Parent-Teacher Associations

School No. 6

Tuesday afternoon, June 9, the Parent-Teacher Association of School No. 6 held its final meeting of the year. During the short business session, which was conducted by the president, a resume of the year's activities was submitted by the secretary. A concise and informing report of the Central Hudson District conference, which was held at Poughkeepsie, was given by the president. Hearty and appreciative applause followed these reports.

The president then thanked the retiring officers and members for the support and confidence extended to him during his tenure of office. Thirty-seven interested parents and teachers congregated to witness the installation of new officers. The president and secretary were re-elected. Mrs. Robert Liscom, acting president, very efficiently conducted the following officers for the coming year: President, Mrs. W. F. Hill; first vice president, Mrs. George Matthews; second vice president, Mrs. Ralph Harper; third vice president, Mrs. Jesse Freese; secretary, Mrs. Monroe Southard; treasurer, Mrs. Augustus Shufeldt.

Prof. Miner spoke regarding the work of the year, which was a most successful one, and thanked the president and retiring officers for their efforts. On behalf of the members and teachers, he presented the president, Mrs. Hill, with a beautiful bouquet of roses, snapdragons and carnations as a token of appreciation from the association.

Mrs. Hill very graciously accepted this gift, thanking the association for the honor conferred upon her by re-electing her for a second term. The ensuing year will be as progressive as the past. Also trusting the members would continue their loyal support and hearty cooperation.

On behalf of the members, the installing officer, the secretary and the treasurer, were each presented with a lovely bouquet of flowers in appreciation of their services. Miss Nether, teacher of room 5, made the presentation of flowers to Mrs. Liscom. Miss Gallagher, teacher of room 10, made the presentation of flowers to Mrs. Garland, treasurer, and to Mrs. Southard, secretary. These bouquets were received with sincere thanks.

For the highest attendance of parents during the year, prizes were awarded to Miss Gallagher's room upstairs and Miss Hewitt and Mrs. DeGraff's rooms downstairs, being a tie.

Attendance banners for the month of June were given to Miss Nether's and Mrs. Swarthout's rooms, being a tie, and Miss Edison's room upstairs, had the largest representation.

At the conclusion of business ice cream and cake were served by the hospitality committee, supervised by Mrs. Swart and Mrs. Schantz.

Only A Month To File Work Sheets

Ithaca, N. Y., June 18.—With July 15, 1936, set as the final date to file work sheets under the Agricultural Conservation Program, Roy A. Porter of Elba, chairman of the state committee, urges farmers to refrain from waiting until the last day to do this.

"There is bound to be a rush in various county offices," he says, "and it is possible that office facilities and personnel may not be able to cope with all late comers."

"Another month still remains to file the work sheets. Already, 22,000 New York farmers have done so and are in a position to receive the payments under the program. No payment will be granted to any farmer who has not filed a work sheet with his county committee."

Mr. Porter points out that the July 15 deadline will be strictly observed. In exceptional cases permits for late filing may be granted to farmers who apply in writing to the state committee and give justifiable reasons why they were unable to file before July 15.

"The farmer accepts no obligation when he files a work sheet, but it puts him in a position for a payment for which he may qualify later. No payments are possible unless a work sheet is on record."

Fall Activities Announced

Quimby, Mrs. Agnes Longyear, Mrs. Anna Avery and the president, Mrs. Frederick Snyder. District room in charge of Mrs. Eugene Freer. Tickets in charge of Mrs. E. L. Merritt. Snyder and Mrs. Frederick Snyder the committee in charge.

Successful Evening
Tuesday evening the Men's Club and Barbers and Palladium classes of the Morris Street Baptist Church held an outing at Poughkeepsie Park. Basket lunches were taken along by the members and ice cream was served. Football and other games were played and a good time was enjoyed by all. The members are looking forward to their next outing to be held Tuesday evening, June 23. Further announcements will be made.

Red-Haired Fight Fan Leads G.O.P. Assault

Dynamic John D. M. Hamilton, the Kansas lawyer who won the national Republican chairmanship by putting Alf M. Landon across at Cleveland, got into politics against the bosses' wishes.

Topeka, Kan., (AP)—Initiative, political resourcefulness and the audacious nature symbolized by his red hair are accounted the factors behind the rise of John D. M. Hamilton, new chairman of the Republican National Committee.

That sandy thatch, his friends say, fits perfectly the personality of the Scotch-Irishman who got into politics by defying party bosses, who jumped on the New Deal with both feet early in the Roosevelt administration and who master-minded Alf M. Landon's nomination for President.

Those who came to know him during Landon's pre-convention campaign and who saw him in action at Cleveland were not surprised to learn that his favorite diversion is watching prize fights.

Army to Politics

Born in Fort Madison, Ia., he went to Kansas as a child when his father, a railroad executive, was transferred to Topeka. He was graduated from Phillips Andover Academy and in law at Northwestern University.

Just out of the army, Hamilton was serving as an assistant state's attorney in 1920 when he decided to run for probate judge of his home county. Republican leaders refused to support him. He ran anyway, made a house-to-house canvass for votes and came out of the election with the judgeship.

His Rise Rapid

Five years later he became a state legislator at 33, was speaker of the Kansas house of representatives at 35, unsuccessful candidate for governor at 36, Republican state chairman at 38, national committee man from Kansas at 40, general counsel for the G. O. P. national committee at 42.

His political friendship is less than four years old. As late as 1932 Hamilton, member of the conservative faction of Kansas Republicans, opposed the nomination of Landon, a liberal, for governor.

Quarrel Patched Up

The quarrel ended shortly after Landon's election when Hamilton, with the governor's backing, was elected national committee man on the death of Dave Mulvane.

Hamilton knew only two members of the national committee when he attended his first meeting in 1934. He was nominated for chairman, however, but was defeated by Henry P. Fletcher. The committee named Hamilton its general counsel at the same meeting, and in May, 1935, he went to Washington as assistant to the chairman. He resigned in March this year to organize Landon's campaign.

From "Grass Roots"

Youthful in appearance—he was 44 on March 2—and vigorous, he has been most effective in raising party funds and in lining up the younger Republican element. He was the leading figure behind the "Grass Roots" convention at Springfield, Ill., in June, 1935.

He is married and the father of two children, a son and a daughter. Full of nervous energy and quick in making decisions, Hamilton is said by friends to keep the most "hellish" working hours of any person they know.

"John" says one, "has worn out at least four rugs in my room in his nervous paces."

Graduates of WPA Household Course

Albany, N. Y., June 18 (AP)—Graduates of a WPA household course have received "diplomas" certifying their ability in the domestic arts. Lester W. Herzog announced today.

Herzog said an entire class of 13 who were graduated from the Nyack Training Center last week have been placed in household service. The class included six men who secured posts as cooks, chauffeurs, doormen, housemen and gardeners.

In Rochester, where seven girls already have been graduated from the training class, the Board of Education there is planning to incorporate the training in its regular school system.

A training center will be opened July 13 for Westchester county in the home economics department of Edison Vocational High School. Herzog said the courses are part of a federal WPA project serving approximately 8,000 unemployed girls and young women seeking employment as maids, laundresses, housekeepers and children's nurses.

KRUMVILLE

Krumville, June 18—Luther Merrihew of Brooklyn, who has been spending a week with his sisters, Mrs. Floyd Donohue and Mrs. Bertha Seiple, has returned home.

Mrs. Albert Myers and children of Samsonville were supper guests of Mrs. Bertha Seiple and daughter Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Every of Accord, Mr. and Mrs. Abel North of Olive Bridge and Homer Sheldon of Acorn Hill spent one evening last week at the home of Mrs. Bertha Seiple.

Mrs. Florence Donohue is spending some time in Kingston with her son, Clifford, and his family. Father Divine called on his angels in Krumville Saturday.

The trucks on the county road are certainly making the men work as the trucks run from the steam shovel to put dirt on the road at "Quarry Hill" in order to make a fill at that spot.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Smith were callers at the home of Mrs. Smith's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Darringer, one day last week.

Oscar Christensen and sister, Violet, of New York city spent the week-end at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Christensen.

Temple Emanuel Service
Friday evening, June 19, services will be held in Temple Emanuel at 7:45. Rabbi Bloem will preach on the theme: "Summer Songs and Summer Resolutions." The public is cordially invited.

New Yorker Held In Girl's Slaying

San Francisco, June 18 (AP)—Albert Walter, Jr., 25-year-old New Yorker, was charged today with the slitting of the throat of 24-year-old Blanche Cousins, who he said had resisted his advances.

Walter walked into police headquarters last night and told astonished officers:

"My conscience bothers me—I've murdered a girl."

He led the officers to an apartment in the fashionable Nob Hill district. They found the body of the former Idaho Falls, Idaho, girl in bed, a silk stocking knotted around her throat, and tied to a bedpost.

Police Inspectors George Engler and Frank Lucey and Deputy District Attorney Frank McMahon said Walter told them he "thought" he attacked the young woman after she lapsed into unconsciousness when he strangled her Tuesday night.

They said he related that Walter met Miss Cousins on a bus between Salt Lake City and San Francisco. The acquaintance was continued after they arrived here Tuesday night he had a dinner at her apartment. They were seated on a couch after dinner.

Walter said he has a wife in New York, where he formerly was manager of a restaurant.

Old Name of Korea Was

Restored After Treaty

Chosen became the official name of the country after the treaty of 1910 which made Korea part of the Japanese empire. But the change of name is one of the least of the odds between the Koreans and Japan. For Chosen was the ancient name of the country, and one it is reputed to have borne for most of 3,000 years, according to a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Korean traditions have it that the nation was founded by one Ki-tze, a Chinese counselor of state who entered the peninsula in 1122 B. C., with several thousand Chinese emigrants, and became king over them and over the barbarous natives he found dwelling there in cave. Ki-tze gave the country the name Ch'ao Hsien—morning freshness, or morning calm. Chosen is about as near as western tongues can approximate it.

The word Korea is said to be a European form of the native form of the Chinese name for one of three kingdoms into which the country was divided when it began to be visited occasionally by westerners a few hundred years ago.

The United States, in its first treaty with Korea, in 1882, recognized it as the kingdom of Chosen. In 1897, the king assumed the title of emperor, and the country the official name of Tai Han. In 1910, when the empire ceased to be, the old name was restored.

Birth of Adam Depicted

Michelangelo's "The Birth of Adam," in the Sistine chapel, Rome, pictures the Almighty, borne on a sweeping wind, stretching out his hand to touch the sleeping form of Adam, who, on the Divine approach, awakens into life; a suggestion, in bodily form, of the transmission of that Divine spark, not merely of animal consciousness, but of the living soul.

FRANK KNOX: Republican 'No. 2 Man'

Believer in the energetic life, Colonel Knox keeps himself fit by engaging in a variety of outdoor sports. He and an old crony, John Muehling, associated with him in the publishing business, are shown ready for a round

Nominee's Vigor Augurs Stiff Campaign

By AURELIUS KINSEY

Chicago (AP)—Essentially an outdoor man, Frank Knox is the vigorous type whose very hobbies promise a vigorous campaign.

"The hurricane deck of a bronco," says this ex-Rough Rider, is his favorite vacation spot.

As a mountain climber he has driven his own pack trains over ranges of half a dozen western states and in New England.

He can sail a boat, run a launch, ski, skate, toboggan, swim—and likes them all. He devotes most of his play hours, however, to riding and golf.

In clothes his taste at 62 is conservative. His reading interests range over a wide field, with economics as applied to present day problems first choice just now.

Wife Proud of Career

Like his running mate Governor London, Colonel Knox smokes a pipe—almost incessantly. They are scattered everywhere in his home and office.

In Chicago he maintains a "back-of-the-house" apartment. Too frail for the city's climate and smoke, Mrs. Knox lives in their Manchester, N. H., home. He visits her at frequent intervals, and she has accompanied him on several of his campaign tours. She was with him at Cleveland.

She confides she is a bit jealous of her husband's publishing career that keeps him in the city so much. But she's proud of his record, too, and intensely interested in his career.

Although childless, Knox is delighted by associations with young people, intimates say. As publisher at Sault Ste. Marie early in his newspaper rise, he started a gymnasium and club for newsboys and added free tickets to circuses and boat rides.

In Manchester he helped start a boys' club and enjoyed being made a confidant of his lads. On some days, associates of the period recall, the office was overrun with youngsters who wanted to talk to "the boss."

Colonel Knox is a Congregationalist, Rotarian and Mason.

His Philosophy of Life

From one of his own editorials comes this summary of Knox's philosophy of life.

"The most useful life is the best: the most unpretentious and genuine, the most worthy. Let us aim to be genuine, to seek simplicity and be unassuming, unostentatious, to keep our hearts tender and pure and our minds on the higher levels."

But from his one-time political enemies comes the description of the man his friends like best:

"Frank Knox is a delightful personality who charged up San Juan hill with Roosevelt and is persisting in making the remainder of his life one continuous charge up that same hill."

That bit of 1912 Old Guard Republican rally has been adopted by Knox supporters as "a remarkably accurate one-sentence summary of Knox as a citizen, editor and politician."

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By CLAUDE E. JAGGER

New York, June 18 (AP)—After absorbing quiet realization in early dealings, the Stock Market today resumed its forward push.

Rails, alcohols, utilities, aircrafts and tobacco accounted for gains or fractions to a point or more around noon. The activity, however, was restricted.

Prominent in the advance were Santa Fe, Northern Pacific, N. Y. Central, Schenley, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, Western Union, North American, Douglas Aircraft, Sperry, Liggett & Myers "B," Philip Morris, Crown Cork and International Harvester.

Among the few soft spots were Dime and Columbia Carbon, off about a point each. The steels and motors were only a shade higher. Woolworth Improved, but Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward and allied stores were virtually unchanged.

Quotations given by Parker, McElroy & Co., members, N. Y. Stock Exchange, 120 Broadway, New York city; branch office, 282 Wall street.

300 Persons Burn Cafe In Texas Where Peace Officer Was Killed

El Campo, Tex., June 18 (AP)—A mob of about 300 persons, balked in an attempt to lynch nine negroes, gave up a search for their quarry today to return here and burn the cafe where a white officer was slain while trying to quiet a bonus celebration.

Whereabouts of the nine negroes, five men and four women, was kept secret during the night as they were whisked from jail to jail. The mob, armed with sawed-off shotguns and including some women, stormed the jail at Wharton and Bay City only to find the intended victims gone.

As the restaurant went up in flames it was believed the crowd would not assemble later today to continue the hunt. Tip Simmons, a deputy sheriff, was slashed to death with knives and razors when he attempted to stop a disturbance at a gay celebration in the negro eating place early yesterday.

Officers said the cafe proprietor was not connected with the slaying, but the mob, enraged over being baffled by the officer's prompt action, gave vent to its fury by firing the scene of the crime.

The angry pursuers were permitted to search the jails at Wharton and Bay City, but authorities had sensed the rapidly rising feeling and acted in time.

The crowd gathered first at Wharton, 13 miles from El Campo, where one of the negroes was reported to have confessed and implicated three others.

Half an hour later the mob stormed into the sheriff's office here and demanded the negroes. Sheriff Harris Miller said three men were permitted to search the jail for the negroes and later told the crowd the jail was empty of their quarry.

State Ranger E. Davenport and three carloads of deputies were reported to have rushed the negroes to another jail, but it was reported unofficially they were taken to Houston.

Shokan, June 18—Twenty-three city guests were accommodated at Grossman's Farmhouse over the week-end and 16 of them are remaining through this week. Mr. Grossman expects an exceptionally good boarding season this summer; he points to the fact that thousands of war veterans and their families will be financially able to take their first vacation in years.

Mrs. Orville Winchell of Kingston on Tuesday underwent a major operation at a Kingston hospital. Mrs. Winchell is a native of this section and she has many friends here who hope for her speedy recovery.

With number of reservoir employees with several trucks are repairing the pavement of the north boulevard between Shokan and Boiceville.

A partial blight of apple tree foliage is the latest plant plague to hit the north shore section. The leaves die in clusters here and there on the tree, very much in the same manner as on the oaks and hickories of forest and shade trees. A heavy June apple drop is also observed in the case of some varieties of apples, noticeably the McIntosh Red.

George Siskler has been kept from his duties with the Department of Water Supply for the past two weeks by an attack of the summer flu.

Old soldiers receiving a bit of spending money from Uncle Sam this week include the following local men: John Toman, George Hogan, Orval Peterson, Clyde Winchell, J. B. Glenwood and John Nodine. Several veterans have removed from Shokan since the war and a few have long since passed on in their eternal camping ground. None of our ex-service men are unemployed, but all are heads of families and as such will have no trouble in spending their bonus money to good advantage.

Prayer meetings are held in the Reformed Church each Thursday night at 8 o'clock.

H. W. Watrous Pays Visit To Kingston

The Last of the Great American Painters Pays Inspection Visit to Melik Art Academy.

Among the distinguished visitors in town during the year, was the Hon. H. W. Watrous, the dean of American painters and internationally known as the "king of the American still-life". While here Mr. Watrous was the guest of the Melik Art Academy which he endorsed for Kingston in April.

The last of the famous group of American painters, composed of James Whistler, William Chase, Frank Duveneck, John La Farge and Sargent, Mr. Watrous at 80 still is in vibrant health and acute sense of humor, despite the serious intestinal infection suffered several months ago that has caused considerable anxiety throughout the art world.

Mr. Watrous very carefully inspected the Academy and was especially pleased with the completeness of curriculum established for the students, from beginners to the advanced. He complimented the director of the school on the founding of "a pioneer art academy in this part of New York state" which he hopes to see "some day affiliated with the other arts, such as music, sculpture, literature and drama, in order that people of surrounding cities, in quest of cultural element in life, would turn to Kingston to obtain the desired branch of art."

Mr. Watrous who was regarded as the sole rival of the eminent Melsomier, chuckled gayly as he recalled his youth in Paris and the encounter with the French master who predicted that "some day this young man will be the American Melsomier". "I did not hesitate to reply to the elderly Monsieur Melsomier," chuckled Mr. Watrous, that "some day, Sir, I shall expect to see you the French Watrous." This Whistlerian wit caused considerable merriment in Europe.

Aside from art, Mr. Watrous became a world figure as a humorist when two years ago he bared the sensational sea-serpent hoax of 1906, perpetrated upon the summer colony at Lake George where he owns the well known Hague House. Mr. Watrous said yesterday, his revelation was actuated by the many current tales of sea-serpents and declared that, in his opinion, the Scots were "spoofing" the world in like manner with a mechanical monster in Loch Ness in Scotland.

In the hope of having some "good-natured fun" at the expense of his friends and associates, Mr. Watrous thirty years ago constructed with the aid of several conspirators a mechanical sea-serpent, or "hippogriff", at his Lake George summer home. The artist still has the "serpent" in the barn of his summer place, where it has been kept safe under lock and key since that day thirty years ago when the mechanical monster almost depopulated Lake George as a resort.

A photograph in the metropolitan newspapers of the Loch Ness monster so closely resembled Mr. Watrous' creation that the artist decided to tell his secret to the world, he asserted yesterday.

"I got a cedar log and fashioned one end of it into the idea of a sea-serpent or a hippogriff," Mr. Watrous recalled. "I gave the monster a big mouth, a couple of ears resembling those of an ass, several gigantic teeth and two ugly eyes consisting of telegraph pole insulators of green glass."

After the creation had received a few coats of gaudy paint, Mr. Watrous was ready to spring his trap, and he admitted yesterday that was almost frightened himself when he first saw his mechanical serpent leap out of the waters of Lake George. The "sea-serpent" was lowered to the bottom of the lake, where it was attached to a pulley through which a rope led to shore and into the hands of the gulfing manipulators.

At the approach of a boatload of friends Mr. Watrous, hiding behind a clump of bushes, would release his mechanical creation, which rose like "a menacing monster, the glare of the seagreen eyes having a particularly baleful effect on the women." Within a few days all of Lake George had heard about the sea-monster and summer residents were leaving in droves.

The newspapers of the world carried long accounts with interviews from eyewitnesses of the sea-monster. Mr. Watrous had a grand time but decided at last to end his joke when the appearance of the "serpent" caused a break-up of the marriage of a newly wedded couple, he explained yesterday.

"We released the monster at one time just as a pair of newlyweds came along in a canoe," he said. "With one glance at the vision and utterly ignoring his bride, the young man leaped into the lake, struck out for shore and disappeared in the woods. When he sought to make up with his bride, she refused to see him, and that was one reason why I took from Lake George forever, the first fresh-water sea monster ever seen in the United States."

Mr. Watrous was born in San Francisco, California, September 17, 1857. He studied in Paris at Atelier Bonnat and the Academie Julian. He painted in Spain, Germany and Italy. He was elected associate member of the National Academy in 1934, and Academician in 1935. Mr. Watrous was vice-president of that organization from 1920 to 1922 and elected its president. He was also president of the following prominent organizations: American Water Color Society, American Institute of Architects, the Architectural League, New York Water Color Club, the National Sculpture Society, the Society of Beaux-Arts Architects, Mutual Painters of America, The Society of Illustrators, The Tiffany Foundation and is a director of The Metropolitan Museum of Art.

During his business career as a painter, Mr. Watrous was awarded almost every art prize known in America, among which were: The Clark prize, Altman prize, Carnegie prize, the Lippincott prize, Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts, Special Gould Medal, St. Louis Exposition, National Arts Club, Gold Medal, Buffalo Bronze Medal, National Academy Baitus Medal and others.

Among the museums of America in which Mr. Watrous' canvases are in permanent collections, are: The Metropolitan, Brooklyn, Buffalo, St. Louis, Portland, Fort Worth, Montpelier, the Corcoran Gallery in Washington, D. C., and others.

He is at the present time an honorary member of the National Institute of Arts and Letters and director of the Art Commission of the City of New York.

Mr. Watrous has promised to revisit Kingston in September and note the progress of the students at the Melik Academy.

As the highest authority on American painting, Mr. Watrous was deeply impressed, both in capacity of an artist and as the chief adviser of the Art Commission of New York, by some Melik's portrait of Governor George Clinton which he termed as "superbly executed and the foremost portrait of Clinton ever made." This portrait, in the opinion of Mr. Watrous, "has certain eloquence of past ages which John Trumbull, the colonial artist, did not bring out in his."

The original is owned by the artist while a smaller copy of it is now in the Counsel Chambers in city hall.

Eight lieutenants convicted with Luciano on 62 counts of an indictment charging compulsory prostitution and four who pleaded guilty also were sentenced by Supreme Court Justice Philip J. McCook.

The convicted men had faced a possible maximum sentence of 1,240 years imprisonment. The verdict was returned June 12.

A heavy police guard was stationed both inside and outside the courtroom.

Zircos, More Than Other Gems, Resemble Diamonds
Zircon is a native silicate of zirconium which occurs as rounded pebbles and as tetrahedral crystals with pointed ends. Zircon has a hardness of 7.5, and is usually brown and opaque, though some is transparent and beautifully colored. Because of their hardness, double refraction and rich colors, the transparent varieties of zircon have been highly prized as gems. In dispersive power, zircon is exceeded only by the diamond, according to a writer in the Indianapolis News. The red zircons are called hyacinth; those that are golden yellow, jacinth; while those that are colorless, a condition usually produced by heating, are known as jargon. Colorless zircon, more than any other gem, closely resembles a diamond. It is easily distinguished because the diamond is not double refracting. The most valuable zircons are obtained in Ceylon and New South Wales.

Excellent crystals are found in Norway, Russia and Canada. In the United States, zircon is produced most extensively in Florida, but is found also in North Carolina, New York, New Jersey and Colorado. The ordinary opaque varieties are employed for furnace and crucible linings, and in making the brilliant zircon light, which is similar to the sunlight.

Used Merchant of Venice Plot
Robert Wilson, an actor and playwright who died in 1900 had previously used the plot of the Merchant of Venice in his play, "The Three Ladies of London," which appeared in 1584. Shakespeare's Merchant of Venice was written about 1594-95, the precise date being uncertain. It was not printed until 1600.

Crocheted Cape A Chic "Topnote"

PATTERN 5360

A summer's night—starlight—and your sheerest frock call for this lacy capelet, which, in turn, calls for crocheted hook and bit of white, pastel or black string. You'll love the soft scarf collar that ties so fetchingly 'neath your chin, so hurry—if you'd enjoy this cape all summer! It will do equally well for a neighborly visit or a more formal occasion.

In pattern 5360 you will find complete instructions for making the cape shown; an illustration of it and of all stitches used; material requirements. To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to the Kingston Daily Freeman Household Arts Dept., 259 W. 14th street, New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS and PATTERN NUMBER.

Hindus in Singapore Do

Penance in Odd Manner

The Feast of Thipusam, a Hindu ceremonial, takes place every year in Singapore, notes a writer in the Chicago Tribune.

White clad Hindus go slowly down the street, stopping every few yards to voice a weird chant. In their midst is one of their countrymen, carrying on a form of penance. He is clad only in short white trousers, but wears a string of huge wooden beads with a fantastic charm at the end of it. Over the upper part of his body and his head is an ungainly wooden structure dangling with other charms and partially supporting dozens of spears. The business ends of these spears are thrust into his body from the waist up. He fairly radiates them.

Small silver needles are stuck into his arms up to his shoulders. A peculiar contrivance holds his tongue half way out of his mouth, while instruments somewhat like hammers are stuck in each side of his face at the root of the tongue. Drawn behind him is a small cart, harnessed to his body by fishhooklike arrangements thrust into his hips. The strangest part of it is that there is never sign of any kind of bodily or mental distress.

There may be a dozen such groups on the streets of Singapore each day during the feast period, which lasts a week. When the penance is done the groups return to the temple, where the curious paraphernalia are removed. In each case the worshiper is given a mouthful of lime juice. He then proceeds happily on his way, apparently much better for his experience.

Judge Gill Presided In Police Court Here

Seven Cases Brought to His Attention—Two Youths Picked Up Here Return Home—Father Calls at Police Headquarters for Son Who Had Been Missing Three Weeks

Louis Cantone and Joseph Fusco, two youths who claimed Brooklyn as their home, were picked up on Albany avenue last night on a technical charge of disorderly conduct. The police department sent out teletypes regarding the youths which resulted in the father of Fusco coming to Kingston from Saratoga. He told the police his son had been missing for three weeks. Judge Gill turned the boy over to his father. The elder Mr. Fusco also furnished the money to pay the transportation home of the other youth.

Mary A. Rogers of the Saugerties road and Walter Allen of this city were arrested last night on charges of public intoxication on Thomas street. Allen was fined $3 and the woman forfeited $10 cash bail by failing to appear in court today. John M. Dolan of Abbey street was fined $3 for passing a full stop sign. Herbert Smith, a negro of East Kingston, arrested for public intoxication on Railroad avenue, was given a suspended sentence provided he return home at once.

Patrick Murphy of Newark, N. J., also arrested for public intoxication, was given an opportunity to leave town.

State Federation of Temple Sisterhoods

The regional luncheon-games of the Kingston, Albany, Schenectady and Troy district of the State Federation of Temple Sisterhoods will be held Tuesday, June 23, at 1 p. m. at the Colony Country Club in Albany.

The proceeds of the affair will go for the state reserve fund and those in charge hope for a large attendance. It is expected that the Sisterhood of Temple Emanuel will be well represented and Mrs. Sam N. Mann, president of the local sisterhood, urges all who can possibly do so to attend. Any who do intend to go are asked to communicate with Mrs. Mann as soon as possible and make reservations. Her phone number is 3140.

PENNSY TRAINS DELAYED WHEN OIL CAR EXPLODED

New Brunswick, N. J., June 18 (AP)—Trains on the Pennsylvania Railroad's main line from New York to Philadelphia moved slowly through here today as 200 workers labored to repair the damage caused when an oil tank car overturned, exploded, and set fire to a string of empty passenger coaches.

At least eight of the coaches were ruined by fire and smoke. Rails were twisted by the heat of the blaze which lasted three hours, the overhead electrification lines were damaged, and railroad men said damage would reach "hundreds of thousands of dollars."

The accident is believed to have been caused by a broken wheel on the tank car.

Fort Schuyler
Fort Schuyler stands at the end of Throgs Neck, which juts into the Sound at its juncture with the East river. An irregular pentagon, it was designed in 1833, according to the French style then in vogue, for both land and sea defense. It was coupled with Fort Totten at Willets Point as one of two fortifications guarding the eastern waterway to New York. The builders hoped to preclude further invasions such as occurred when Lord Howe, using Throgs Neck as his base during the Revolution, drove Washington out of New York to White Plains.
